Not familiar with Photoshop? This post will describe the essential features and features of Photoshop Elements that you need to get started. (On some devices, you may be prompted to install Adobe Photoshop Elements. If so, click yes to complete the installation.) 1. Create a New Document Before you get started, create a new document. It's always a good idea to create a new document if you're working on a new project. In Photoshop Elements, you can choose among images, photos, videos, and other files to create a new document. To create a new image or photo document, click File and select New. In the upper-right corner, you'll see that a white box appears around the image. The image inside the box is the current image. Scroll down to expand the options for creating a new document. You can choose from a variety of Document Types, including Print, Web, Save, Image, PDF, Presentation, Animation, Color or Color Overlay. Choose Save as Image, and then select an image from your hard drive or click Upload to choose an image on your computer. Click OK to complete the process and create a new document. 2. Use the Control Panel The Control Panel is the workspace for applying various tools and effects. It holds the tools, menus, panels, and other features that allow you to create images. The Control Panel is found along the top of the document window. You can access it by clicking the green-and-white + icon in the upper-right corner of the document window. When you use the Control Panel, the tools are hidden while you work on your document. To see the tools, you can click the small triangle next to the + icon to expand the Control Panel. Click the + icon to collapse the Control Panel, or you can expand the entire panel by dragging your mouse pointer to the edge of the window. The buttons at the left of the Control Panel allow you to set the colors of your document, change the background and color of your image, adjust the image resolution, zoom in or out, and more. The buttons at the right of the Control Panel allow you to blur, burn, add frames, add text or borders, add borders to an existing frame, and more. These tools are grouped under these labels for easier access. 3. 388ed7b0c7

Arlene Foster has been critical of a commitment given by Brussels to ensure that no solution is imposed on the North. Photograph: Liam McBurney/PA Northern Ireland's secretary of state, Karen Bradley, has said the British and Irish governments are committed to achieving a "successful, balanced and lasting" Brexit and said she hopes a solution can be found for the Irish border issue. Speaking at a meeting in Dublin of the Inter-Governmental Conference on North South Co-operation, she sought to play down the risks of leaving the EU and said the government's priority was securing the best possible deal from Brexit. The Northern Ireland secretary repeated the British government's commitment to maintain full access to the single market through the EU after Brexit and to maintain a seamless border with the Republic. Ms Bradley added: "We acknowledge concerns on both sides of the border, but emphasise our commitment to maintaining full access to the single market and to ensure there is no return to a hard border. "The government will do all it can to secure the best possible deal for the people of Northern Ireland and the United Kingdom, and will do everything it can to protect the very hard-won peace and prosperity of the region." The IGC meeting of the governments of Ireland, Northern Ireland, Scotland, Wales and England, followed a joint ministerial committee on Brexit meeting in Dublin last week. The Irish government said the UK's repeated failure to progress the negotiations had created uncertainty, which had led to a £1.6 billion fall in the value of its largest asset, its public sector pensions, since the referendum. In a statement, Ms Bradley said she fully supported the European commission's analysis of the consequences of the UK leaving the EU, which had shown the negative impact on Northern Ireland. "The progress we make through the negotiations will determine the future of our economic prosperity and the future for people in Northern Ireland," she said. "Ensuring that Northern Ireland and Ireland can continue to thrive after we leave the EU is our top priority. We need to remain focused on securing the best possible outcome for the people of Northern Ireland and for the United Kingdom." The Northern Ireland secretary did not address criticism of the British government by Arlene Foster for not taking part in earlier talks between Irish and British ministers in the wake of the Brexit vote. The DUP leader said there
